

N. Wyman Winbush, II is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and Jacksonville University (MBA). He is a 27-year employee of IBM, where he currently recruits and trains new employees as an IBM Summit Program Manager. Prior to IBM Wyman served in the Navy as a helicopter pilot/instructor and Commanding Officer. He retired from the Naval Reserves as a Captain/O-6 with 30 years of total service. He continues to serve as a keynote speaker/trainer at Navy “Returning Warrior Weekend” programs, which combine a heartfelt 'Thank You' with post deployment education/motivation for veterans and their families.

His company, Kairos International, is dedicated to enabling individuals to achieve their divine potential through his tailored lectures, workshops and seminars. He leverages a rare combination of extensive military experience, volunteer service, fortune 50 corporate savvy and spiritual insights to inspire thousands to exceed their natural abilities and “THINK BIG” while enjoying their journey to success. Both profit and non-profit organizations have benefited from “Called2Excellence” topics such as “Managing Your Personal Brand,” “Competitive Cultures and World Class Organizations” and “Excellence Is Not An Option - It’s A Business Imperative.” Wyman also works with individual achievers as a Certified Life Coach.

As a community servant, he has served in a number of volunteer roles which include 10 years as a Trustee of the Florida State College at Jacksonville (2 years as Chairman) and 3 years as a Director of JEA (formerly Jacksonville Electric Authority). He currently serves on the Big Brothers and Sisters of Northeast Florida Board of Directors, a National Board member of AABE, and a member of the Business Advisory Council of the University of North Florida Coggin College of Business. He is a graduate of Leadership Florida and Leadership Jacksonville.

Wyman and Rosemary have been married 27 years and have three children. They are both active in their church where he is an Elder and serves as the Pastor of Men.
